The St. James Literary Society Inc

August 2013.

We are the St. James Literary Society, a non-profit organization founded in this city in 1898 and as such, one of the oldest learned societies in North America. Our mandate is to provide a forum for the free expression and exchange of ideas on a variety of subjects: politics, religion, science, law, ethics, etc.

Over the years many distinguished scholars have honoured us with their presence: Wilder Penfield, Heather Munroe-Blum, Phil Gold, David Roy, Hans Selye, Robert Zattorre, Julie Carrier, to name a few.

The purpose of this letter is to invite you to attend a session entitled Understanding Pain with Dr. Fernando Cervero on September 24, 2013 at 7:30 pm at the Faculty Club of McGill University situated at 3450 McTavish. Dr. Cervero is the Director of the Alan Edwards Centre for Research on Pain of McGill University. He holds the Canadian Institute for Health Research (CIHR) industry Chair and is a full professor in the Department of Anesthesia and the Faculty of Dentistry. The Centre comprises researchers from the Faculties of Medicine, Dentistry and Science. Its main goal is to bring together the McGill community of basic and clinical pain researchers in order to promote work that will eventually result in cures for chronic pain.
